THE BAILEY LAUNCHED.

NEW TORPEDO BOAT SLIDES INTO NEW-YORK WATERS.

THE VESSEL NAMED BY THE GRANDDAUGH-TER OF THE ADMIRAL FOR WHOM THE DESTROYER IS CALLED.

In the presence of over three thousand people the United States torpedo boat destroyer Bailey was yesterday launched from the shipbuilding yards, at Morris Heights, of the Gas Engine and Power Company and Charles L. Seabury & Co., consolidated. So numerously accepted were the invitations to witness the launching that a special train of fourteen cars, which was chartered to convey the guests from the Grand Central Station to Morris Heights, was inadequate to accommodate all who ssembled at the station, and even when five more cars were added every inch of standing room was occupied. When the train arrived at the shipyard a big throng of local sightseers was already in attendance, and by noon, the hour appointed for setting the Bailey free from the stocks, not only were the barges moored in the vicinity of the dock and the spacious platforms built on either side of the vessel packed to their utmost capacity, but the spectators also covered the roofs of the numerous sheds in the yard and found vantage places by climbing upon the cradles and framework of other ships in course of construction near by.

ON THE PRELIMINARY WORK.

For an hour before a small army of workmen had been employed in the preliminary work of inserting wedges between the ways and the cradle, and knocking away the blocks supporting the keel. With a punctuality always observed upon such occasions, everything was in readiness to the minute Directly in front of and about the bow of the Bailey was erected a stand for the naming party. Upon this platform Miss Florence Beekman Bailey, granddaughter of Rear Admiral Theodorus Bailey, for whom the vessel was named, took her position at the bow of the destroyer, ready, with ceremony of naming the boat. Almost at the noon hour E. S. Amory, president of the consolidated company, gave the signal to release the cradle carrying the Bailey. With one blow of the hammer the pivotal wedge fell to the ground, and then, at first almost imperceptibly, the big stroyer began to move. At the same instant Miss Balley broke across the bow a bottle of champagne wrapped in the National colors, proclaiming as she did so, "I name thee Bailey."

Gaining momentum at every yard, the newly christened craft glided gracefully down the greased ways, and as she slid into the waters of the Harlem River the screeching of whistles, the cheers of over three thousand people and the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" greeted the successful launching of the first torpedo boat and torpedo boat destroyer ever built in New-York waters.

Among the party on the naming platform were Miss Mary de P. Bailey, Miss Lawrence, Miss Lord, Miss Schoonmaker, Mrs. Booream, Mrs. Zinsser, Mrs. Von Duhn, Miss Culver, Miss Foulke, Edmund S. Bailey, Walter P. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Caskell, J. Russell Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wendell, jr., Mrs. Norton Kingsbury, Harry L. Barker, Chester B. Law-rence, E. Platt Stratton, W. R. T. Jones, William J. Parslow, Commodore Postley, of the Larchmont Yacht Club; Commodore J. B. Metcalf, Rhode Isl-and Yacht Club; David Banks and Henry Belknap.

DESCRIPTION OF THE BOAT. The Bailey is one of the three torpedo boats for which provision was made by Congress on March 3, 1897. The sum appropriated for the Bailey was $250,- in height, and stands on a wooden base, with an attachment to keep it from moving when the vessel rolls in a seaway. The design is somewhat Roman in character, with three handles. On the three faces between the handles are shown the head of the Admiral in relief, surrounded by a wreath of oak and seaweed, a picture of the United States steamship Bailey and an appropriate inscription.

MARRIED WOMEN BARRED OUT.

THE DEPARTMENT FORRIDS THEIR EMPLOYMENT AS POSTOFFICE CLERKS.

Washington, Dec. 5 .- The First Assistant Postmaster General, Perry S. Heath, in a decision today in the case of Mrs. Jennie J. Drown, at Modus, Conn., announces that "the Department has decided it will be incompatible with the best interests of the service to retain married women as postoffice clerks. The Department has, therefore, ruled that when a female postoffice clerk marries it will be necessary for her to resign from the service."

Postmasters under this ruling hereafter will have to call for the resignations of such employes and recommend their successors to the Department.

lishment is ironclad, and that a box bearing the name of the firm is never allowed to be taken from the building except with an article which has been sold and for which the firm is responsible. Experience, it is said, has taught the house the necessity of taking this stand, otherwise a great many persons in sending gifts to their friends would buy inferior articles at an irresponsible place and put the guarantee of Tiffany's name upon them by simply purchasing a box at the store. And so the stock of precious stones in the great establishment is no more carefully guarded than the stock of cases in leather, sath and even pasteboard.

Mr. Mable said the association's work for the year had been extremely successful. "The work of this association," he said, "is in harmony with what may be regarded as the most promising educational tendency of the time-a tendency which means quite as much for the well to do as for the neglected classes, and which educates by object lessons, by inference and definite instruction the fortunate as directly as it educates the unfortunate. James Hulme Canfield, librarian of Columbia University, spoke briefly, saying in part:

We are just opening the door of the twentieth We are just opening the door of the twentieth century. The coming era will find the people in the cities. There will be a change from the rural to the urban. The intellectual and political power is going to be invested in the cities, and we in them are going to have a great responsibility if we are to retain the active participation of the people in the civic government. At the present time political power is in the hands of the intelligent.

We must piace it in the hands of the intellectual, and we can do it by the public school. The great men of the country will not save us, though they may help us. We are going to be saved by the widespread intelligence of the classes. I would rather have one year of kindergarten than two years of any other training.

Other addresses were made by Kate Douglass Riggs and Mrs. Oren Root.

CARING FOR INDIAN CHILDREN.

MISS ESTELLE REEL SUPERINTENDENT OF

INDIAN SCHOOLS. TELLS OF HER WORK. Washington, Dec. 5 .- Miss Estelle Reel, general superintendent of Indian schools, in her annual report makes a strong plea for compulsory education and advocates strictly industrial training for Indian children. She says the industrial branch of the work should be forced to the front and Iterary instruction be narrowed to the simple, practical elements. The educational outlook for the Indians is said to be encouraging, and better buildings and more facilities for industrial training have been provided this year. The report urges a course of cooking, nursing and economic housekeeping for girls, making them home makers in the highest sense, and farming, stock raising and the useful trades should be added to the common branches taught the boys. During the year 23,378 miles were travelled by Miss Reel in her work.

PRUNING THE HARPER TREE.

OLD PUBLISHING HOUSE SELLS ONE BRANCE OF ITS BUSINESS TO A RIVAL

Colonel Harvey, who is acting as the agent of the State Trust Company in the management of Har-per & Bros., told a Tribune reporter yesterday that the famous old publishing house had sold to the American Book Company, No. 100 Washington Square East, the publication rights of its entire line of college and high school textbooks, comprising four hundred and fifty works, and including a complete classical series of Greek and Roman literature, grammars, dictionaries, etc. The price Colo-nel Harvey did not care to mention.

An officer of the American Book Company said the sale was made in accordance with the policy of lopping off all unprofitable branches of the Harpers, and the purchase was made because his com pany could handle that line of books with profit. pany could handle that line of books with profit. It was not a large part of the Harpers' business, he said, not more than one-fittleth of the whole. The consent of the State Trust Company was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday to act as the temporary receiver for Harper & Bros. Justice Gildersleeve, who made the order appointing the trust company as receiver, also granted the application for the voluntary dissolution of the corporation and appointed Francis C. Cantine as referee to take proof of the claims of the creditors. A question arose as to whether or not the State Trust Company should act as receiver, being a corporation. The consent disposes of this matter,

The Board of Estimate met yesterday afterno and fixed the compensation to be paid by the Met-ropolitan and Third Avenue railroad companies for the Kingsbridge Road franchise. The action of the Board of Estimate is taken in accordance with the charter, which provides this means of deter-mining the value of public franchises, instead of having them sold at public auction, as formerly, The franchise is for twenty-five years, with a reappraisement at the end of that period. The Boo had been in executive session for an hour before it met openly.

The law provides that at least 3 per Edward Lauterbach, on behalf of the Taird Avenue company, made a strong plea against the increased exactions.
